

Statement of Purpose for Scholarship Sample

Born to immigrant parents and brought up in a progressive country in India, I learned to shoulder responsibilities at an early age. Right from my childhood, I witnessed what struggle is. We were two siblings, and both my parents toiled hard to educate us. As I grew up, I served as the translator in our family, as my grandparents barely understood English. It has been a natural transition for me from my intermediates to college life. The more I watched my parents work, the greater my ambitions stood before me. I wanted to grow up fast and stand by my parents to ease up the financial pressure they were undergoing.

When I reached the age of six, my parents admitted me to a course for value education. I started attending Ramakrishna Mission, and this ambiance suited me perfectly. I spent my early years picking up values from the monks, that shaped my character and personality significantly. As a natural outcome of this learning process, I learned to take matters seriously. As I grew up, I volunteered myself at different NGOs, including the Red Cross Society of India. This significantly helped me develop my organizational skills, and I learned to walk in the shoes of a leader. Discipline, organization and tenacity significantly moulded my profile to craft the person I am today.

Naturally, I influenced my sibling in a positive way, and my parents were happy about it. I translated these leadership qualities in my academic circuit as well. Apart from scoring proficiently in my examinations, I assisted my teachers and seniors as they organized workshops and seminars. Back at home, my parents counted on me to groom up my younger brother, and I remember spending long hours sitting with him, training him up with good manners.

Professionally, I am keen to pursue a career in the medical field. It has been long that I have wanted to be a pediatrician. Now that I stand at the crossroads of a consistent academic life and a dynamic career, I look forward to pursue the advanced course from XYZ College, UK. As a volunteer, I have attended patients while working with the Red Cross Society. Besides, I worked on my personality to make myself approachable by people from all age groups. At the same time, I played volleyball and badminton. This fostered the traits of a team player in me. I channelized these skills as I interned at AIIMS after completing my graduation. It was here that I realized that the medical field has tremendous opportunities for me, even beyond that of a pediatrician. My holistic approach to medicine makes me a suitable candidate for this program.

All these years, I have been an avid learner. Capitalizing on every opportunity that has come down my way, I have propelled myself towards a happening career. The program that XYZ University offers will perfectly complement my efforts. I look forward to establish my competence in the area of my interest and embrace a happening career in India.
